Our methodology

Albert Einstein was reported to have been asked what he would do if he only had one hour to save the world. He answered: "I would spend fifty-five minutes defining the problem and only five minutes executing the solution." ANEGIS's methodology is based on the same theory – strategy is key.

ANEGIS works to a simple principle: good design is the key to success. Accordingly, we base our methodology on the 'reverse-effort approach', a model we have adopted working on projects from 50 to 27,000 users.

ANEGIS uses Visual Studio Application Lifecycle Management (ALM) to manage the product lifecycle, so reducing risks and increasing efficiencies. TFS provides version control, a build system, CMMI, Scrum, agile planning tools and metrics for managing software development projects. ANEGIS is one of the only companies implementing Microsoft Dynamics 365 to use TFS and have working build scripts.
