Thrive culture, productivity, personal well-being and employee engagement

The current challenges many organizations face are partially connected to the remote working revolution, especially driven by Covid-19. Through this, the usage of MS Teams has risen and will expand more quickly than ever. Since MS Teams is an organizing layer, aspects such as the social component, employee well-being, or training and development receive less and less attention and often move into the shadow of the New World of Work (NWOW) prerequisites for a modern and sustainable organization. The unified employee experience platform (EXP), Microsoft Viva, promotes a positive work-life balance and helps combat the blurring between professional and private life for employees and managers.

CHALLENGES

With the rise of remote work in all different industries, productivity problems and aspects such as the social interaction between employees, personal well-being, the blurring between work and home life, a lack of employee training, low levels of employee engagement, stress, burnout, or poor mental health are often either abandoned or could be much more anchored into the company culture and their digital strategy.

IDEAL SOLUTION

By integrating MS Viva (4 modules), customers are supported to overcome those challenges by focusing on a unified and personalized employee experience, personal well-being, and development on one single platform - MS Teams – for managers and employees.

DESIRED OUTCOMES

The desired outcome through the integration of MS Viva module(s) is to promote a positive work-life balance, help employees and managers combat the blurring between personal and professional life, increase emotional and personal well-being, connect and engage more deeply with colleagues and create a modern and future-oriented learning culture.
