One of the many challenges facing local authorities today, is how to deliver a future proofed digital strategy that meets the evolving demands set by their customers within the confines of reducing budgets.

This challenge is not being addressed through channel shift - "Digital transformation is not simply about moving existing services online" (Kable 2015). To fully respond to the digital agenda, local authorities need to go beyond channel shift and deliver a 360 degree approach to service delivery.

As a trusted partner, Civica is helping local authorities embrace true end-to-end digital transformation with Digital360; digital transformation that delivers tangible savings, increased efficiencies and improved customer satisfaction.

Transforming service delivery for the citizen of today and tomorrow

Local authorities need to understand and deliver services their customers want. To achieve this local authorities need to effectively capture data and information from a number of channels. This information needs to be processed into the back office to deliver the required fulfilment. Customers then need to be kept informed through efficient communication to help reduce avoidable contact. In addition, management require enriched business intelligence to help further understand their customer's needs and manage the demands on their services effectively.

Digital360 effectively captures, delivers and communicates interactions and requests from customers, employees and partners. As a future proofed solution, Digital360 is helping local authorities transform service delivery for the citizen of today and tomorrow.
