Your new online world...

- ▶ You quickly discover that SharePoint Online has reduced costs and no longer needs as much IT resources to manage...
- ▶ Your accounts department are happy, because a capital cost (CAPEX) is now an easily managed monthly operational (OPEX) cost...
- ▶ All your users can work remotely, from home or out in the field...

This is great, all these advantages!

- ▶ But your users don't like the idea of not having all the applications that they use, easily able to launch the files that are now saved in SharePoint Online, or the files that have been migrated from their old familiar home drives and they just don't seem to integrate the same way they did when they were stored on the file share...

The Problem

- ▶ Your users quickly discover that when they had file shares, they could easily launch their software applications from the files... That's gone!
- ▶ You have migrated all your business documents and files to SharePoint, and now users have to download them before they can open the files...
- ▶ You have migrated all the user's home drive files to their OneDrive, and now they can't easily open those files...
- ▶ Even after downloading files to their local drives, they then need to upload the modified files once they have made changes...
- ▶ Users don't like doing this, it is not as easy as it was... How is this better?
