Take Control of Your School Districts Web Presence

March, 2022

Imagine
EVERYTHING

Overpriced and out of touch, most solutions just aren't cutting it.

Imagine what would be possible with software solutions built, perfected and priced for educators, by educators. For too long, providers have been using essential concepts like collaboration and partnership as buzzwords. It's time for the expertise of the education community to come together, backed by a technology provider that truly becomes part of their team to deliver the next generation of essential online tools.

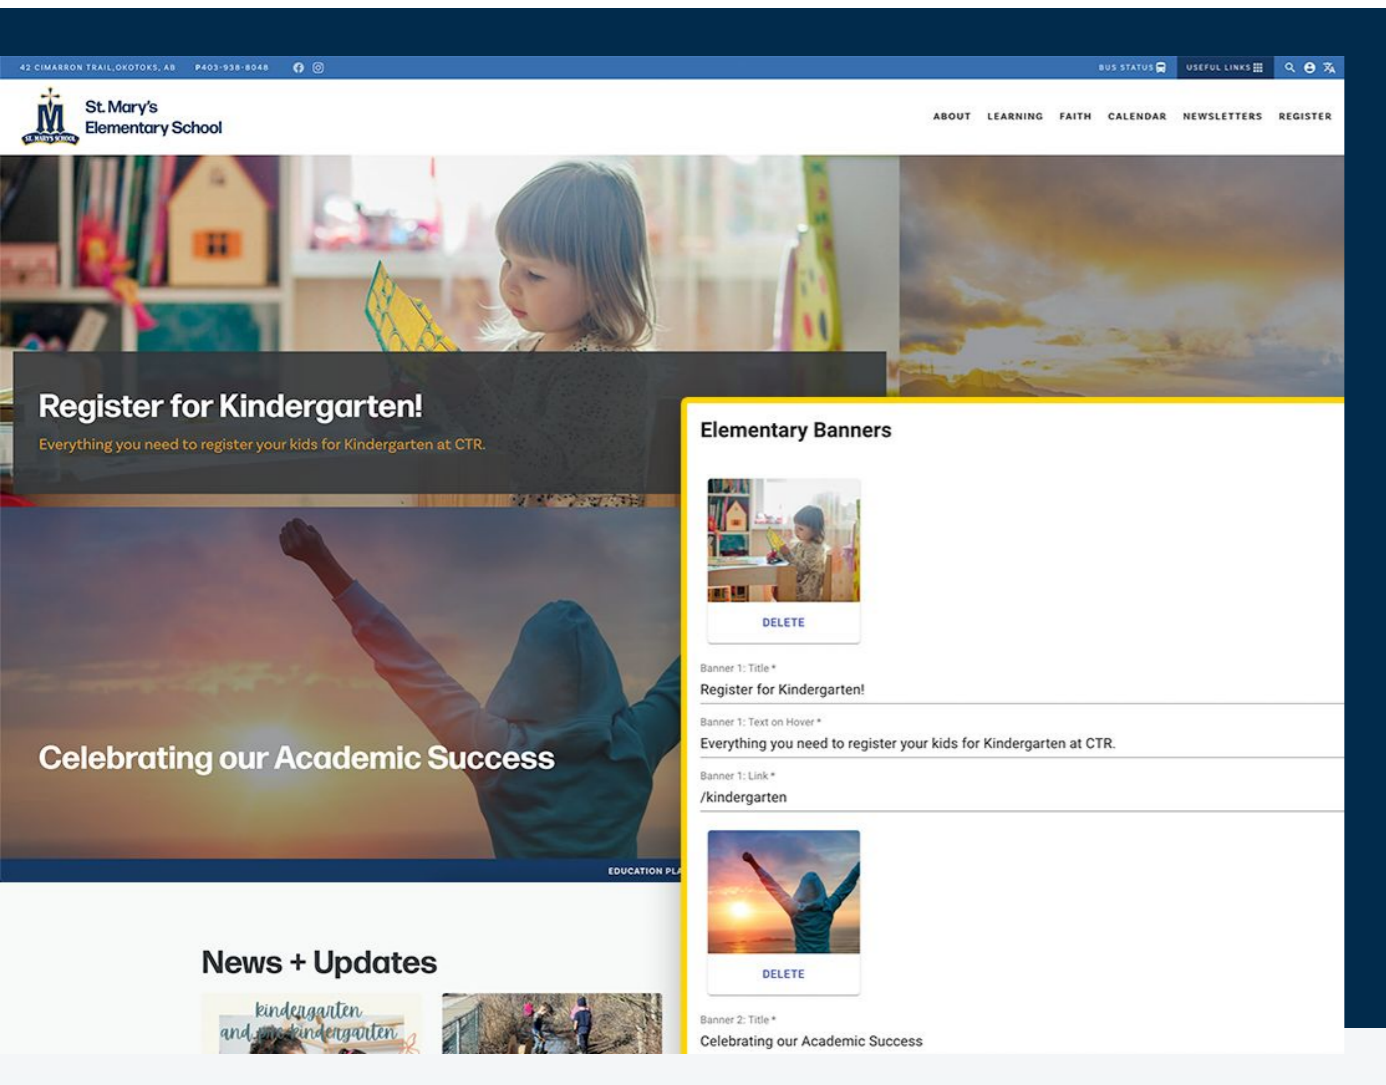

CHALLENGES

Rising costs and stagnant solutions have seen the education space spending more and more each year, with little progression or innovation to show for it.

IDEAL SOLUTION

Innovation and cost savings won't come from sales teams in boardrooms, but by teachers in classrooms. It's time for technology to truly partner with educators.

DESIRED OUTCOMES

When a development team puts educators in the driver's seat the opportunity finally exists for solutions to be tailormade, infinitely flexible and affordable.

Partner success: Calgary Catholic School Division is saving over 70% of their website costs.

"It's refreshing not to be tied to what a product can or can't do. It's also refreshing not to be nickel and dimed at every turn! When we partnered with Imagine Everything, we hired a team of designers and developers to build solutions that fit us to a tee.

With their team and approach to working with us, we've been able to redirect over 70% of what we used to spend managing websites to other mission critical aspects of our division.

They aren't just slinging tacos like everyone else. We didn't buy a product, we partnered with their expertise to build something special and unique to our needs.

The difference is substantial."

- John Schutte, Director of IT, Calgary Catholic School Division
