The operational advantage others can't match

Insurance-native intake, not generic AI

Indico was built for the messy, inconsistent intake work that defines real insurance operations. Generic AI and legacy IDP tools break under document variability, edge cases and insurance-specific nuances that Indico handles every day in production, at enterprise scale.

One operational foundation, not fragmented tools

Indico provides a single ingestion, enrichment, and orchestration layer across underwriting, claims, and servicing. Competitors force carriers into point solutions that create silos, duplicate effort, and compound cost as use cases expand.

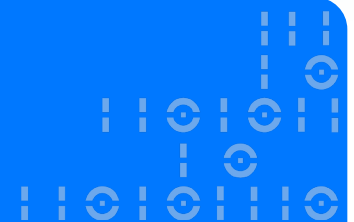

Proven in production, not pilot purgatory

Indico adapts to how carriers actually operate. Agents flex to real processes, volumes and regional variation without forcing rigid workflows or constant reconfiguration. While newer platforms stall in pilots or require heavy rework, Indico is battle-tested across global carriers and production-scale workloads.
