Case

The HR area at Brookfield Investimentos had a challenge: how to offer information and services to employees without decreasing their productivity.

After detailed research and diagnosis of the customer's profile and real needs, Impar's Digital Workplace was chosen as the best solution. Subsequent work consisted of content production, creation of a visual identity in line with the company's brand and the development itself. Today, Brookfield employees have access to everything they need in their day-to-day work, but they also easily access any institutional information and update quickly and simply. Culture, productivity and engagement go together and bring results for each employee and for the company as a whole.

“Digital Workplace enables new and more effective ways of working, increases engagement and agility, and is able to exploit consumer-oriented technologies and styles.”
