The PlanB. GmbH defines and positions itself as an expert and partner for digital product engineering. We live the development of digital products and have created a framework in which proven methods, transparent processes and recurring patterns have been combined into a solid system for the agile design and development of innovative digital products. Therefore stands PlanB.s´ Digital Product Factory (DPF).

Our DPF enables us to holistically support our customers in rapidly developing and operating digital solutions and future digital services not only in terms of technology and operation, but also in terms of their usability, look-and-feel, functionality, and cross-device compatibility for an optimum of user experience.

Along our development processes and methods, it is extremely important for us to ensure the necessary transparency during project development. From our point of view, this is the way to mutual trust and, as a result, a veritable strategic partnership. This makes us a strategic partner in our clients Digital Transformation.
