Data Compass

Your strategy and roadmap for innovation

Servian's Data Compass has been developed from our collective industry experience and data expertise to help build, improve, and measure your organisation's data management capability.

The program, run over a two-week timeframe, uses a comprehensive framework of data management practices - across six key dimensions - that help to benchmark your organisation's capabilities, identify strengths and gaps, and leverage data assets to improve business performance.

What is it

Data Compass is a rapid, holistic assessment of your organisation's data maturity, across People, Process and Technology.

Data Compass surfaces what could be improved and sets the foundation for further development, improving your data management in the most beneficial way.

What are the benefits

Data Compass helps you to understand your current data maturity and provides the insights and recommendations to achieve greater benefits from data within your organisation.

Data Compass has been designed to assist the leadership team in properly addressing data management questions along with providing an actionable data maturity remediation roadmap.

What we deliver

You will receive a tailored report outlining your current data management maturity leading to increased awareness and understanding of your practices within your organisation.

We also provide high-level recommendations to increase the maturity of your data management roadmap.
