

Problem

Fragmented data silos: Working professionals receive information through multiple platforms stored locally across devices and/or on the cloud.

Uncontrolled sharing: Copies of shared information can be circulated without the sender's control

Information retrieval: Data retrieval depends on the human memory and hence eats up lot of productive time

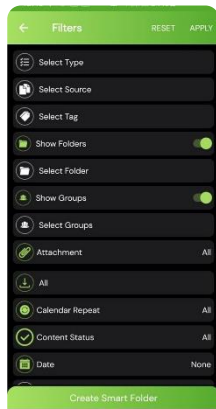

Security breach: Transition and security of data at the time of employee exit are uncontrolled & time-consuming

On average, an employee spends more than 25% of productive time to just track the information floating around the company's storage servers.
