Microsoft Power Platform – Build For

Let Xpedition design and build a complete solution to overcome key challenges

While Microsoft Power Platform's low-code approach to solution delivery has enabled thousands of organisations around the world to use technology to transform their own processes, many do not have the bandwidth or desire to task internal staff with the adoption of these capabilities. For these organisations, the potential and value of the platform remains out-of-reach. This is especially true for startups and other lean organisations with a high percentage of specialist staff who cannot allocate the time required to properly understand and adopt the platform.

Organisations like these need partners like Xpedition to guide the conversation, own the challenges, and deliver value using the platform without disrupting business as usual or distracting high-value staff.

Xpedition has helped hundreds of organisations successfully deliver solutions based on Microsoft technologies, including the Power Platform, over the past 20+ years. We have done so by involving the right people from across the client, at the right time, and only for as long as required to ensure that our solutions add value and achieve the desired objectives.

We can resource every programme delivery function for our clients including business analyst, consultant, architect, developer, tester, integrator, trainer, project manager, programme manager, and more. We can even guide organisational strategy at the board and senior management level as required.

If you want to use Microsoft Business Systems to drive digital transformation across your organisation but want to outsource as much of the programme as possible, speak to Xpedition about our 'Build For' offering. We will put together the right team of professionals with industry and technology expertise to deliver end-to-end platform adoption success.

With Xpedition, you will get?
